California Family Rights Act (CFRA) And The Federal Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA)

California employees may be entitled to leave under the California Family Rights Act (CFRA) for qualifying reasons. They may also be entitled to leave under the federal Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA).

If the employee is qualified for both, CFRA will run concurrently with FMLA for qualifying reasons.

The Company is CFRA eligible – determine employee eligibility

Employee Eligibility

If the EMPLOYER is only CFRA eligible, they won't need to go further to the mileage requirement to determine if the EMPLOYEE is eligible for FMLA.

If the EMPLOYER is CFRA and FMLA eligible, the mileage will determine if the EMPLOYEE is eligible for FMLA as well or only CFRA.

Concurrent Leaves & Pregnancy Disability Leave

Concurrent Leaves

If an employee is eligible for leave under both CFRA and FMLA as outlined in the previous slides, the leaves of absence will run concurrently and exhaust simultaneously.

Pregnancy Disability Leave

California offers Pregnancy Disability Leave (PDL) for employees who work for a covered employer. Covered employers are those with 5 or more employees.

Even if an employee does not qualify for CFRA or FMLA, they may still qualify for PDL. An employee who qualifies for both PDL and FMLA may take those leaves concurrently.

A pregnant employee may take up to four (4) months of PDL with their healthcare provider's certification and then follow their PDL with parental leave, if qualifications are met.

If you have any questions regarding CFRA/FMLA or have an employee needing leave, please don't hesitate to reach out to us.
